Dear Hiring Manager,

I am writing to enquire if you have any opening position as mobile developer in your organizations. I enclose my CV for your information.

As you can see, I have extensive work experience mostly in mobile application and some in web industry for a whole development cycle, from marketing organization, getting requirements, analysis customer needs, recommend idea, planning project timeline, developing with Android and IOS by using framework, fixing bugs, and delivery to customer. For programming, I have great experience with multiple computer languages which everything focus for mobile business, including Object C, Swift, Java, and Unity3D while in mobile web, including, HTML5, CSS3, Bootstrap framework, and CreateJS.

I have a Bachelor's degrees in Environment Engineer from Chulalongkorn University and Master's degrees in Computer science and 8 years of experience working as a programmer, 3 years in web development and 5 years in mobile development for IOS and Android.

I work in an agile development environment where our clients change their requirement all the time, working with co-worker to ensure the best quality products to meets clients' needs. Moreover, you will find me to have the entrepreneur mindset and behavior in the core such as solve the solution with the appropriate cost, optimistic in work environment with client and co-worker, eager to risk for the greater result, focus, flexible, Yes-can-do attitude, and honest.

I have excellent experience while working as a manager and subordinate so I am really understand what both needs. I am strongly believed that my work experience and attitude would be benefit for your organization. For further information, please contact me via email or Skype.

Respectfully yours,
